

Scouting and Guiding is a voluntary, non-political, secular, non-sectarian, uniformed youth movement. It was founded by Lord Baden Powell in England in 1907 and started in India in 1909. This movement was conceptualized in India by the founder, who had spent 10 years in this country as an army officer. It is an international organisation spread over 155 countries and has a strength of 36 million members. It aims at the development of the personality of its members and trains them to serve the society.

Scouting is an educational movement based on open-air games. Scouts and Guides learn through play way methods, which bring integral development in a child. They become good leaders as well as good followers and true citizens of the country. They ever remain physically fit and mentally alert and morally upright. They become self-reliant and face challenges of life confidently with the motto 'Be prepared' and 'Service to others'.
